LITTLE men use big words to say small things.

The latest improved perfecting press has an excellent attachment.

The more reputation an actress loses the more reputation she has.

The New York Press says the tariff is not a tax. Then what is it?

CLEVELAND has rattled the Republicans. They are afraid of him.

"PROTAXIONISTS" is a new name for the advocates of a high tariff. And a good one.

The Democrats should keep popping the ginger to the Non-Partisans (so-called) in Tarrant county.

PLANT wheat and plant sorghum. People must have bread and meat. Wheat makes the bread and sorghum fattens the beef.

FORT WORTH goes marching on. New brick storehouses are going up and new business firms are coming in. Truck lines will win.

The New York Press denies the assertion that the tariff increases the price of protected articles. If not, what is the object of the tariff?

No, BLAINE is not running for President, but if Harrison should be elected, this time next year would find Blaine running the President.

With MAXBY and BONNER and BAILEY speaking for Mills in the Ninth district it does not appear that prohibition is much of an issue in politics this year.

"Mrs. CLEVELAND has set down on the bustle," writes a society correspondent, "and it must go." It is because she refuses to sit on it that it has to go.

MILLS will return to the north and enter the canvass in the doubtful states in a few days. His friends will see that everything goes right in the Ninth district.

"GATA" writes to the Enquirer that both CLEVELAND and HILL will carry New York. This is the severest set-back the Democrats have met during the campaign.

THE Democrats have the confidence and the enthusiasm, and the Republicans have the boodles. Watch and pray. Indiana and Connecticut will decide the battle.

STATSMAN and Patriot Martin will find that the only "machine" in use among Texas Democrats is a pile-driver. It will be set in motion November 6, for use one day only.

FROM all over the north comes the information that never in the political history of the country has there been so much interest taken in the naturalization of voters.

ACCORDING to THE GAZETTE's special New York correspondent, the gamblers are putting their money on Cleveland to win. If anybody knows, the gamblers know. They have to.

THE Republican Senate tariff bill proposes a reduction of $75,000,000, of which $31,500,000 come from free alcohol and tobacco, and not one cent from reduced taxation on woolen goods.

NORTHWEST Texas is especially adapted to the production of small grain. Northwest Texas has a home market for all the wheat it can raise without paying one cent for freights. Plant wheat.

AMELIE RIVES-CHAMBERLAIN's latest heroine has "hair like poured oil fire." A woman has to be very red-headed indeed to keep up with the pace with which this young authoress makes her processions move.

GENERAL PALMER is making things whizz in his campaign for Governor of Illinois. "As firm as the law, no firmer," is the Democratic shibboleth, and it is a battle cry that seems likely to lead to victory.

"OLD HUTCH," the Chicago dealer who has cornered the wheat market and sent prices away up in the air, is the farmer's friend—and the farmer now should be wise enough to know when to let go his wheat surplus.

THE wind sown by the Republican state convention has developed into a whirlwind in the north. Every day the Republican papers have something to say about the danger to be incurred in Texas by voting the Republican ticket. Arch Cochran and his pals will reap a rare harvest in November.

THE Kansas City Journal has a long editorial on "The Campaign Liar," but it fails to mention therein the liar who said the Mills bill was a free trade measure, or the liar who has so persistently quoted things never said by the London papers. But probably the Journal is too modest to talk about itself.

MR. BLAINE says he "can see no danger of Harrison's defeat." Mr. Blaine also said he saw no danger in trusts, or words to that effect. Mr. Blaine is not of the same mind with the people. When the bloody shirt was eliminated from national politics, Mr. Blaine lost his political grip. Mr. Blaine is a Bourbon.

LATEST fashion news: They are wearing very high bonnets and hats this fall—any where from $5 to $50. The most fashionable cloaks do not have pockets, there being no special use for them after the garments are paid for. Tight-fitting shoes are worn with corsets. Stockings are usually open at the heel or toe.

THE Milwaukee Journal has gone down to the bottom of the well and found this truth: "The Republican party is dead and buried, and in its stead there stalks abroad the vampire Monopoly, with white face and crimson lips, clothed in the raiment of its victim, and seeking for more blood with the specious plea of 'protection.'"

WHEN the printer set up Z. L. White's article for Harper's he left off part of the title. It should have been "What I Don't Know About Western Journalism," instead of being simply "Western Journalism." This would have accounted for the fact that the writer gives first place in Denver journalism to the Tribune, a paper which has long been out of existence.

TIMES go by turns. To the man who has voted the Democratic ticket since 1881 it sounds queerly and pleasantly to read of Republican effort to carry Michigan. Blaine is in Michigan. Are the noble old Rips trying to save a remnant of the grand old party upon which to reorganize after the wreck of November, 1888? What's the matter with California and Illinois?

THE New York Press strives to arouse prejudice against tariff reform by calling attention to the fact that Miller, Carlisle, the Breckinridges and others who are speaking in its favor throughout the north are southern men. It is a weak cause that is compelled to call in prejudice to answer argument. What matter the section whence an orator comes if his premises be true and his logic sound?

THE GAZETTE is, if possible, a bigger friend to the Republican party.—[San Antonio Express.]

Well, THE GAZETTE doesn't run around fighting the very cardinal principles of Democracy while claiming to be Democratic, and carrying a knife in its sleeve for every Democratic candidate in the state. The Express enjoys the proud distinction of being alone in that role.

THE man who would not be entrusted with private business should not be entrusted with public business. The same considerations should govern men in voting for local officers and lending advice as to political action as in the transaction of their private affairs. The man who could not command confidence as the custodian of private business, should not command confidence as political leader or teacher. The point in these reflections may be found in their application.

REPUBLICANS in Massachusetts are forming "cavalry campaign companies" and "Harrison and Morton gentlemen's clubs." These latter clubs have adopted a novel and striking uniform, consisting of a white swallow-tail dress coat of flannel, with black buttons, black or very dark pantaloons; white gaiters to be worn over the boots under the bottom of the pantaloons, a white Kersey hat, topped off with the most striking feature of all, a red, white and blue umbrella, the colors being in wide stripes running horizontally around the umbrellas, the umbrellas are carried closed and suddenly opened simultaneously at command by the entire company.

IN the safe of the Sinclair house, says the New York Times, "are about $18,000, the aggregate of bets on the result of the national election, placed at an average of 10 to 8 on the success of the Cleveland ticket. If these hints are not definite enough, a believer in the Harrison and Morton ticket who wants to back his opinion with sums ranging from $100 to $500, will discover a pleased dealer of their bets in Bookmaker James Mahoney, who may be found at Sexton's billiard rooms, Broadway, near Thirty-fourth street or Brunner's saloon, in Third avenue, near Fifty-fourth street. Mr. Mahoney has already bet $16,000 on the Cleveland ticket, giving the standard odds of 10 to 8, and he is sanguine enough to wager as much more. And, by the way, Mr. Mahoney is not betting on Mr. Cleveland merely because he wants him to win. He is a business man in a sense. He has looked over the situation carefully, and he bets just as he would in making a book on the races. But he is a great believer in what he terms Cleveland's nerve and Cleveland's luck."

THE MAID OF TAMPA.
A curious story comes to hand concerning the terrible epidemic in Jacksonville, Fla. That there is "a woman at the bottom of every mischief" seems like a libel on the fair sex and we do not care to fully endorse the adage, but there are in life so many illustrations of it, that we feel justified in repeating the quotation. According to the Washington Post, "this whole yellow fever business is a love affair, or the result of a love affair." McCormick, the man who brought the yellow fever to Jacksonville, was a lover. His sweetheart was in Tampa, a small place, of less than 1000 people, and Tampa was isolated because of yellow fever. But yellow fever or no yellow fever, McCormick wanted to see his girl, so he managed to pass the cordon and steal a soulful interview with his own true love. Upon the fact whether the girl had the yellow fever or not history is silent. It is enough to know that when McCormick returned to Jacksonville he brought a supply of the deadly microbes with him; perhaps on his lips, perhaps on the inside of the crook of his arm. At any rate, he introduced yellow fever to Jacksonville. Surgeon General Hamilton is authority for the statement. As Eve brought woe to the Garden of Eden, so Mr. McCormick's girl brought yellow fever to Jacksonville. Understand, we do not claim that she was to blame any more than that Eve was to blame. McCormick must share the responsibility with the maid of Tampa.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Robert Buchanan will soon publish his autobiography under the title of "A Poet's Pilgrimage."

Jean Ingelow, the poetess, is thoroughly benevolent. Her delight is to give dinner to the sick poor who get to the hospitals within her reach.

The Empress of Austria is said to own twenty pet horses and twice as many dogs, after whose proper entertainment she personally sees every day.

Belva Ann Lockwood has been married twice, is a graduate of two colleges and has twice run for the Presidency. Altogether she seems quite two-two.

While the Prince of Wales was in Hungary he broke a roulette bank and won $15,000. He may not make a great ruler, but his highness is a good deal of a roulette.

Mr. Bryan, once a department clerk in Washington, organized the postoffice system of Japan. Since his return from that country he has been in receipt of $100,000 a year.

The Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, known as one of the leading astronomers and electricians of Great Britain, expects to visit America for the first time during the coming winter.

Cardinal Gibbons is a small man, with steel gray eyes, close cut gray hair and genial manner. He never refuses a visitor, and is always willing, when interviewed upon any important subject to talk about the weather.

The Duke and Duchess d'Aosta, disappointed with a honeymoon, and are living quietly at the Duke's palace. They will shortly pay a visit to Empress Eugenie at Paris. The diamond tiara which Dr. d'Aosta presented his bride cost $17,000, and contains 1150 stones.

William C. Reddick, Secretary of War, and descendant of a Mayflower family, has just signed his approval of a novel weapon for the members of the hospital corps. It is a cross between a short sword and a bayonet knife. The knife is not for use as an offensive weapon, but for employment in case of emergencies.

John B. Herrish, of the ship builder of Bristol, R. I., is one of the most remarkable of blind men. To see him walking about his shipyard you would never for a moment suspect that his sight was not as good as yours, for he can point out the beauties of a ship with an accuracy and appreciation that are little short of marvelous.

A Grand State.

Richmond, Va., State.
Texas, with its 237,504 square miles, is the largest state in the Union—six times as large as Pennsylvania and nearly six times as large as New York. It is a state of wonderful resources. At the World's Fair, held in New Orleans in 1885, the Texas exhibit attracted more attention than any other. People were struck with the great variety of resources displayed in that exhibit. It was really a revelation.Texas is growing rapidly. We do not hear of periodical booms there, for that state is always booming.
Now one of the greatest features of Texas and one that accounts in a large measure for her remarkable prosperity is her Democratic vote.

In 1884 Mr. Cleveland's state majorities ranged from 1047 to 131,975. When the returns rushed in the day after the election the news came from Texas—90,000 for Cleveland! A few days later the news came, Texas gives 100,000 majority for Cleveland. And the returns grew better and better until the entire vote was in—132,000 in round numbers. In Somervell county Blaine did not get a single vote.

And as Texas increases in population and intelligence her Democratic majority increases. Two years after Cleveland's election there was a state election, and the Democratic majority was 173,376. The Republicans claimed that they did not poll their full vote. That was true. They polled about 35,000 less than they did in 1884. But it is about the vote of 1888 that the outside world is interested. The New York Sun has the following: "Henry Hall, of Dallas, Tex., ex-chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said last night that the Lone Star State is all right. She will have the largest extra crop this year that ever was seen. She will raise $80,000,000 worth of cotton, too, and will give the biggest Democratic majority of any state in the country. Notwithstanding the fact that our wool-growing interest is also the largest in the Union, our folks believe that an unnecessary tax is an injustice. Texas will give Cleveland and Thurman 150,000 majority!"

The largest corn crop, an $80,000,000 cotton crop, and 150,000 majority for Cleveland and Thurman!
That's the way to talk!

Wrote to the Wrong Man.

New York Times.
Tom C. Platt's "Manufacturers' League" is now engaged in securing the names of employees in manufacturing establishments. Mr. John Robertson of the firm of John Robertson & Co., manufacturing machinists at 129 Water street, Brooklyn, a few days ago received a circular from Mr. Platt which requested him to "forward immediately a list of all voters, without regard to politics, employed by you," to "facilitate the business of the campaign." What use Mr. Platt wanted to make of the names Mr. Robertson said he did not know. So far as he was concerned, Mr. Robertson said yesterday, he would not attempt to influence the vote of his employees. He has been a life-long Republican, and voted for Blaine for President four years ago, but he expected this year to vote for Cleveland and Thurman.That Handsome Sloop.

Judgment for Libel.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—Inspector of Police John Bonfield has secured judgment for $50.00 in Judge Algie's court against Dr. George B. Cunningham for alleged libel. The suit grew out of the shooting of Dr. Thomas Waugh in September, 1885, by Joseph Sweet.

Chicago Street Car Strike Prohibits.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—The conductors and drivers of the North Side will probably have to strike Saturday to enforce their demand for shorter hours and better pay. President Yerkes has given out that the company has no further proposition to offer and that it is ready to stand on the ground it has already taken no matter what the result may be. This means that the North Side car lines will be tied up for an indefinite period. The company can get new men to operate them.

The man who said "Let me make the songs of a people and I care not who makes their laws," had he lived in our time and been the publisher of the Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper, would have put pictures and stories in place of songs. For this is the family age, the age of home and of love—home-making, home-loving, home-keeping—however a law may wander. The spring of happiness is at home for those who find it out. Ten cents in silver or stamps for September, October, November, December.

The October number is now on the news-stands—six cents.

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, Philadelphia.

Han's Down the Flag.

New York Herald.

The announcement is officially made, as we print elsewhere, that the Republican party will not discuss the tariff bill at this session of Congress. "The demand for a measure of some kind from the Republicans, we are informed, 'is a just one and will be met by the Senate. At the same time that legislative body will frankly say to the public in their report that more time is needed and more testimony solicited. In this way the proposed measure can be modified and adjusted to either labor or capital avoided. The Republican party cannot afford to act hastily in this matter.' 'Let a tentative bill be presented and then refer the whole matter back to the finance committee.'"

Since swindling and falsehood have become depraved forms of human ingenuity there has been no exhibition so marked as the Republican course on the tariff. Almost a year has elapsed since the President called the attention of Congress to the surplus as an evil threatening the nation's credit. The Democrats worked out a remedy in the Mills bill. The country expected the Republicans to follow their example and Congress decide between the plans. When the rumor came that no serious discussion of the tariff was intended by the Republicans, that Mr. Blaine and Mr. Quay had so advised, this was denied with indignation. But rumor was well informed.

Why should the Republican party act hastily? The monopolists are in power. Labor bears the burdens. The Carnegies amass mammoth incomes, the result of oppressive imposts. The tariff suits the oppressor. It is vested interest, like the land; sacred, like the Crown and the Established Church. If ten years are to be consumed in "discussing" a new tariff measure, it will mean too many for the monopolists to enjoy their plunder. So on this tariff question the Republican party has done its flag. There is an end of that comedy. And on the business of retaliation against Canada Mr. Sherman likewise hauling down the flag. Retaliation might hurt Portland, Me., as "Canada's winter port," and that would never do. For under this blessed Republican domination the whole country may shiver or burn provided no harm comes to the slightest Yankee interest.

The flag is hauled down. Mr. Blaine's orders have been obeyed. The pretense which has held Congress together until autumn—namely, that there would be an honest vote on the tariff—was a fraud. The Republicans never meant to act. But the people may have something to say, and the more clearly they understand the nature of this barefaced fraud the more emphatic will be the response in November.

Illinois.

Chicago Herald.

The St. Louis Republic says: "A most careful poll of one county in Illinois shows such astonishing changes as to render it certain that if even one-quarter of the percentage which this county shows should occur in the rest of the state Illinois would go for Palmer and Cleveland by a much larger plurality than it went for Blaine in 1881." Certainly no better canvass of the state has ever been made than that of General Palmer. He has had large audiences and spoken with convincing force and plainness. He has been actively assisted, too, by distinguished Republicans like Walling and Lovjoy, whom protection heretics have driven from their party, and unless Illinois farmers are curiously inaccessible as to where in this issue their interests lie there is a large surprise in store for Illinois Republicans.

Counterfeit Custom Stamps.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 4.—Captain Porter of the government secret service yesterday found a number of clever imitations of custom stamps used on imported cigars. The general appearance of the counterfeit is excellent. The difference from the original are the words "Manufacturers of imported tobacco" and on the counterfeit are the words "Manufacturer of imported tobacco." The bogus stamps are made by Schmacher & Ellinger of New York, and are not used to evade the payment of duty, but are pasted on boxes containing inferior domestic goods in order to delude the purchaser into the belief that he is buying the Havana weed. The firm will be prosecuted.
